This Publication outlines the long artistic career of Yorgos Manousakis (1914-2003), one of the worthiest representatives of the 1930s Generation. Images of Greek landscapes, still lifes and flowers as well as human figures constitute the artist's favourite themes, which he depicted in a variety of media. He was particularly fond of the arts of printmaking and lithography. Apart from painting, Manousakis also pursued the art of the book, photography, cinema, shadow-theatre, botanology and air modellism.
