Alpha Bank included in the Bloomberg Gender-Equality Index (GEI) for the third consecutive year

Alpha Bank has been included in the Bloomberg Gender-Equality Index (GEI) for the third consecutive year, which is a major recognition of its initiatives towards the advancement of women in the workplace.

As part of the assessment for its inclusion in the Index, Alpha Bank once more stood out for its high performance in creating a work environment of equal opportunities for both men and women, as well as its policies and benefits, exclusively available to women Employees.

“Alpha Bank aims at providing a work environment of equal opportunities and respect for everyone, while emphasizing the reinforcement of skills and women’s prospects for career advancement in managerial positions. Our presence in the Bloomberg Gender-Equality Index (GEI) for the third consecutive year confirms the Bank’s consistent commitment to provide women with equal financial and professional inclusion, as well as to consolidate transparency in the workplace”, says Alpha Bank’s Executive General Manager – Chief Human Resources Officer Fragiski Melissa.

The Bloomberg Gender-Equality Index (GEI) is one of the most comprehensive indices on gender equality issues globally, and today it includes 380 companies around the world. It assesses listed companies from all sectors of the economy, while at the same time it is a key source of information for the global investment community, with environmental, social and governance data (ESG), whose importance in investment decision-making is constantly increasing. In Greece, three companies are included in the GEI Index, Alpha Bank being one of them.
